Information & Instructions for Applicants

Notebook Grant Scheme (NEU PC Plus Programme)

Infocomm has become a powerful tool in transforming Singapore into a well-connected and digital-savvy nation. The Infocomm Media Development Authority (IMDA) supports this through the formation and development of the infocomm sector. It designs programmes that bring the benefits of infocomm technology to students from low-income households to help them excel in their studies.

One such programme is the NEU PC Plus Programme, which offers students the chance to own a brand new computer with software and internet access at an affordable price. With infocomm devices in their hands, students can now have easy access to lesson notes, online lectures and many other learning tools to aid their schoolwork and projects.
